

Denver Community school district and Taylor Physical Therapy proudly partner to provide comprehensive sports medicine services to all Denver athletes. With the goal of making sports medicine services more accessible, an on-site athletic trainer is provided in various ways to help injured athletes get the help they need the most efficient and effective way possible. With that, early evaluation can help prevent injuries and keep athletes where they belong - on the court or playing field!

What is an Athletic Trainer

Athletic Trainers are highly qualified, multi-skilled health care professionals who render service or treatment, under the direction of or in collaboration with a physician, in accordance with their education, training and state's statutes, rules, and regulations. As part of the health care team, services provided by athletic trainers include primary care, injury and illness prevention, wellness promotion and education, emergent care, examination and clinical diagnosis, therapeutic intervention and rehabilitation of injuries and medical conditions.

- Evaluate and accurately diagnose injuries and illnesses
- Help manage and direct plan of care to ensure the efficient and timely referral processes
- Educate student-athletes, parents, and coaches on injury and illnesses and the importance of proper management
- Collaborate with physicians to improve patient outcomes
- Manage, coordinate, and communicate return to play progression

Who are Denver's Athletic Trainers

Garrett Cox, PT, DPT, ATC, Katelyn Maloney MS Ed. , ATC, LAT, and Shelby Reiter, ATC, LAT proudly serve the sports medicine needs of your Denver Cyclones!

Garrett resides in Denver, Iowa with his wife Brandi, 2 year old son, Calvin, and newborn daughter Natalie. Garrett graduated from the University of Northern Iowa in 2014 with a B.A. degree in Athletic Training. Garrett went on to further his education in obtaining his Doctorate in Physical Therapy from Clarke University in 2017. Garrett began working at Taylor Physical Therapy following graduation in 2017. Garrett works at both the Waverly and Denver clinics as a Physical Therapist, as well as providing athletic training coverage to Denver High School. Garrett specializes in outpatient orthopedics, concussion management, vertigo, and sports medicine. In Garrett's free time, he enjoys spending time with his family, watching his favorite sports teams, and fishing. When asked why Garrett chose a career in physical therapy and sports medicine, Garrett responded, "Athletics has always been an important part of my life, from providing entertainment to teaching me life lessons. Athletic training allowed me to stay within the realm of athletics while continuing to provide patient care."

Katelyn serves as an athletic trainer for Denver High School. Fall of 2022 was her first season with the cyclones and she has enjoyed every minute of it thus far. She grew up in Townsend, Delaware but has since lived in Maryland, Illinois and now Iowa. She studied athletic training and healthcare management at Towson University and earned her master's degree from Southern Illinois University. After graduation at SIU, she worked full time as the head football athletic trainer for 7 seasons with the Salukis and then two seasons with the Northern Iowa Panthers. She has recently stepped away from the college setting to pursue a career in health, accident and sport insurance with AG Administrators. This new remote position has afforded her new time that allows her to spend time at Denver events in the evenings.

Shelby Reiter also currently helps cover events at Denver High School. Shelby graduated from UNI in 2018 with her Bachelor's Degree in Athletic Training. Since then, she has worked with high school athletes to help treat injuries for all sports. She is passionate about injury prevention, concussion treatment and emergency care. In her free time, Shelby enjoys being outdoors, cooking, and spending time with her family.

What services are provided for your Denver Athletes?

Injury-Checks: During this time, Garrett can evaluate injuries, check on "tweaks" and nagging pains, offer guidance to prevent injuries, provide activity modifications to keep the athlete safely participating, or recommend further follow up evaluation / referral as needed. Communication is key - progress reports for coaches and parents will be provided as well as education for athletes so they understand their injuries.

When: Every Wednesday after school

Where: Denver High School

How: No appointment needed - approach Garrett with any sports medicine concerns or let your coach know you would like to speak with him.

Concussion Management: Concussions can be scary but recovery doesn't have to be! Garrett can help manage a concussion from initial assessment and evaluation to returning the athlete safely back to the court and in the classroom.

- Initial assessments and evaluation
- Return to Learn progression guidance
- Return to Play progression guidance
- Post-concussion treatment

Sporting Event Coverage

Katelyn, Garrett or Shelby can be found on the sidelines of home and away football games, and all home volleyball, cross country, wrestling, basketball, soccer, track and field, baseball and softball contests. In season athletes can utilize our sports medicine staff before, during, or after competition. Out of season athletes may also take advantage of this opportunity to seek our athletic trainer's help while attending sporting events and cheering on their fellow Cyclones.

FREE Injury Evaluations at Taylor Physical Therapy Denver

Taylor Therapy Denver Clinic offers one FREE injury evaluation per injury. During that evaluation, Garrett (or another staff physical therapist) will complete a thorough evaluation, provide treatment as indicated, and recommend follow up as needed. He will provide education to the athlete and parent, address questions or concerns, and communicate with coaches regarding practice guidelines and return to competition as needed. Contact Taylor Physical Therapy's Denver clinic between 8am-5pm to schedule.
